

Dear Queen...

Dear queen, I write with a fainted smile,
And with great sorrow in my heart.
Dear queen, have I seen not such a pile of
Great memories thrown so far.

And my pen on this paper shall not be,
Neither I suppose tears in mine eyes,
But isn't it so sad to see
You cannot meet my eyes?

Dear queen, how I wish my eyes you'd see,
But you must away to your duty,
For I don't want in disarray you to be
When you leave for your duty.

And how my heart does ache inside
When, so sadly, you push me away,
Though your actions I shall not despise,
For your duty you must away.

Dear queen I hope that you're all alright,
And your sheep are at home.
I wish you well and hope you're all alive inside,
For I'm such a lost hope.

And my pen on this paper shall not be,
Neither I suppose tears in mine eyes,
For I don't want in disarray you to be
When you leave for your duty...

Dear queen, I wrote with a fainted smile,
And the sorrows still in my heart.
Dear queen, have I seen not such a pile of
Caring words thrown so far!
